My dear Dr. Cosío Villegas:

Mr. Paredes did not return the reviews to you from West Virginia because he had left them in his home in Austin. He returned to Austin this week and delivered the reviews to me. They are enclosed herewith.

Mr. Paredes also delivered his English translations of the last four essays, so the translation of the book has now been completed. As soon as possible one of our editors will go over this manuscript and polish it. It will then be re-typed and a copy will be sent to you for your final comments and suggestions, if you care to make any. A copy will also be delivered to Dr. Harrison (he has agreed enthusiastically to write the introduction).

With all good wishes, I am

Very cordially yours,

Frank H. Wardlaw

P.S. When we send this final copy to you we will want you to indicate the order in which the essays are to appear. We will also need information as to when and where each was first published.
