TREASURY DEPARTMENT

DEFENSE SAVINGS STAFF

December, 1942

Mr. Plutarco Elias Calles,
5182 Bedford Drive,
San Diego, Calif.

Dear Mr. Calles:

This letter is about two types of United States War Savings Bonds that right now have a particular appeal to men and women of your standing.

In their patriotic desire to help America meet the costs of war, many have already invested the legal limit ($3750, cost price) in the popular E bonds.

And many of those people naturally want to keep on saving, not only for today's need but also to help the government in its effort to check rising prices and to provide "after the war" security for themselves.

Whether you have purchased the limit of E bonds or not, you may want to consider the other two war bonds that are available to you, Series F and Series G. Both are fully described in the enclosed folder.

Please don't misunderstand. The Treasury Department is not suggesting any change whatever in the nationwide 10% Pay Roll Savings Plan. That we must all participate in, to the full extent of our ability, if we are to be successful in our war effort.

The purpose of this letter is simply to tell those of you who are in the category of "larger" investors about the many attractive features of Series F and Series G war bonds.

You may buy through your local bank, or direct from your Federal Reserve Bank or branch, or by mail from the Treasurer of the United States.

Sincerely,

EW Sloan
