My dear Professor Brinkley:

Dr. John Fizer has been good enough to send me a copy of your recent study on Soviet law with the idea that we could find it proper for our new journal Estudios Internacionales.

It fits entirely within the purposes of our journal, so we shall publish it in the very near future. I hope that Dr. Fizer has explained to you that we are unconcerned about its publication in any other language than Spanish.

Please find herewith the corresponding draft, and send me back duly signed the attached receipt.

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Villegas,

Thank you very much for your kind reception of my article. I am most happy that you will be able to publish it soon. I am enclosing the receipt for the sum which you so generously granted for the use of the article. I must shamefully admit that I do not read Spanish, but I shall look forward to seeing your journal and perhaps collaborating with you again in the future.

Sincerely yours,
