Dear Doña Emma,

I don't know how you and Emma chica take to reading academic writing about Daniel but as long as this issue of a journal I edit has two such pieces I thought I'd send you a copy. I believe a Spanish translation of the review essay by Deas will appear in Diálogos.

We would like to move permanently to the Puget Sound area after I retire in May/June but the reality depends on our ability to divest ourselves of this house in a most promising market. It looks like a longer wait than we would wish for. Barbara is anxious to settle in her house on the Sound and rent a small apartment in Seattle near the University of Washington and then travel to the many places she's never seen as well as those she enjoyed while we're still mobile enough to make it a pleasure.

We had a great time for five weeks last summer driving about the Maritime Provinces & the Gulf Peninsula and ferrying over to Newfoundland & a lot of Labrador. Different - our first experience with beds breakfast in the country side. Not China or Annapolis, but O.K. Love you as both. Jack
