Dear Sir:-

" The World's Work ", one of the largest and most reputable publications in the United States respectfully invites you to submit an article for publication.

" The World's Work ", is published by the firm of Doubleday, Page, & Co., at Garden City, N.Y. and is considered authoritative using material prepared only by persons invited to submit them and under their signature only.

As representative of this publication, I respectfully invite you to submit an article not exceeding 2,500 words in length upon some such subject as " What I hope to Achieve for Mexico " or " Mexico as I want to See It Four Years from Now ". In a recent article, later repudiated by you, are many points that are respectfully suggested as being of particular interest to the people of the United States and the readers of the " Worlds Work. "

The original request for this article, signed by the Editor of the World's Work, was presented by me to the Presidential Offices, inasmuch as it embodied also a request for a similar article from President Obregon. It is in the hands of Mr. TerreBlanca.

I shall be in Mexico City until July 20th, 1924.

As soon as possible I should appreciate very much advice as to whether this article may be expected or not, in order that suitable provision for the space in our publication may be set aside.

Respectfully Submitted,

RCL-hs

Robert C. Lewry,
